

Train to become an

artsaward adviser

Bronze & Silver adviser training

This course is for adults who want to become Bronze and Silver Arts Award advisers. Arts Award advisers are the primary assessors of young people's work.

Advisers are crucial to Arts Award. They need to communicate with young people successfully and offer them effective support while they are working towards their Award.

You must be aged 18 and up, and have the equivalent of two years working in the arts with young people.

You could also be a teacher with a teaching qualification or a diploma, a lecturer holding a City and Guilds 730 level 3 adult trainer award or a youth worker with an NVQ 3 in youth work.

In order to promote good practice and in recognition that Arts Awards advisors may work in 1:1 settings with young people, you will need to have a current enhanced CRB disclosure.

On this training course you will:

- Get an overview of the Arts Award and a chance to explore case studies and examples of work.
- Get your Bronze, Silver and Gold adviser toolkit, which details what is required at each level.
- Become familiar with the assessment criteria and framework for each level.
- Learn how to be the primary assessor for young people's work for Arts Award.
- Ask questions about how Arts Award may work for you in your particular setting.
- Learn what happens next and how to move forward with Arts Award.

The training is free to those working in Telegraph Hill and surrounding areas and for those working on a project linked to Bold Vision.

(There is a one off cost of £60.00 for Arts Award Adviser registration)

Where: New Cross Learning (formerly NX Library)

When: Sunday April 22nd, 10am - 4pm
